SMOKING SONG.

Floating away, like the fountain's spray, Or the snow-white plume of a maiden, Our smoke-wreaths rise to the star-lit skies, With blissful fragrance laden.

CHORUS.

Then smoke away till a golden ray Lights up the dawn of the morrow, For a cheerful eigar, like a shield will bear The blows of care and sorrow.

The leaf burns bright like the gems of light, That flash in the braids of beauty ; It nerves each heart for the hero's part, On the battle plains of duty. Then smoke away, &c.

In the thoughtful gloom of his darkened room,
Sita the child of song and story,
But his heart is light, for his pipe beams bright,
And his dreams are all of glory. Then smoke away, &c.

By the blazing fire sits the gray-haired sire, And infant arms surround him, And he smiles on all in that quiet old hall, While the smoke curls float around him. Then smoke away, &c. In the forests grand of our native land,

When the savage conflict's ended, The pipe of peace brought sweet release From the tell and terror blended. Then smoke away, &c. The dark-eyed train of the naids of Spain, Neath their arbor shades trip lightly,

And a gleaming eigar, like a new born star, In the clasp of their lips burns brightly. Then smoke away, &c. It warms the soul, like the blushing bowl, With its rose red burden streaming. It drowns it in bliss, like the first warm kiss From the lips wish love ouds teeming.

Then smoke away, till a golden ray Lights up the dawn of the morrow, For a cheerful cigar, like a shield will bear The blows of eare and sorrow.

Study. There are two methods of study; the one is the studying an author, the other may be called studying a subject. In the former case the student purposes to make himself master of the whole contents of a book; he diligently persues it, and 1 00 becomes familiar with the style and Janguage and the sentiments of the writer -By the other method he follows up any particular branch of knowledge through all the books in which it may be found; searches in them for every passage that Best cheese I year old not less than 15 is to his purposes, and collects every-0 50 where the seattered particles of information. Of these two methods of seeking knowledge, the first is much to be preferred. By diligently fixing the mind upon one book at a time, the intellectual faculties in the three branches of apprehension, attention, and memory, are ex-0 50 ercised, disciplined and improved;whereas, by the other practice, when a subject is pursued by the help of indexes through a multitude of authors, and writers are consulted only as books of ref-0 50 erence, a superficial, discursive habit of study grows upon the mind, and the student will be so far from improving the three faculties above mentioned, that he is in danger of impairing them. And no man of letters can safely trust himself 0 50 with this plan of study, till he shall have first diligently wrought into his mind firm habits of accute attention, by long practice of the other.

Sowing SEED .- Farmers, as well as other people, like to make good bargains, and we like to have them, especially when they buy a year's paper of 0 50 us, and pay for it in advance. But that is not the bargain we are going to write about. It is the sowing of grass seed. If you would make a good bargain with mother earth, give her plenty of seed. If you scrimp her, you chest yourself and chest your earth, and are guilty of double dishonesty. If you undertake to save $5 in seed, you will lose $20 in hay and pasture. Be wise, then, and sow bountifully, and make a good bargain.-Vermont Watchman.

For Young ladies who are secustomed to read newspapers are always observed to possess winning ways and 0 50 most amiable dispositions; they invariably make good wives, and always select good husbands. A fact, especially where pay the printer" is a maxim steadily kept in view.
